In the first three months of 2023, the UAE’s economic growth registered a 3.8% decrease year-over-year, from 5.5% in the last quarter of 2022. This demonstrates a sustained, albeit slowing, performance in the non-oil sector—which constitutes about 75% of the nation's economy. Concurrently, there was a noticeable dip in oil production growth. The recent economic shifts align closely with the predictions of the Central Bank of the United Arab Emirates (CBUAE). Hence, the anticipated growth for 2023 and 2024 remains at 3.3% and 4.3% respectively.

This projection considers a slowdown in the non-oil sectors over these years due to waning global demand and a significant reduction in oil production in 2023 because of the OPEC+ agreements. However, 2024 is likely to witness a resurgence in oil output as certain production restrictions are relaxed. Factors such as the situation in Ukraine, global economic trends, potential changes in OPEC+ production guidelines and production levels from other OPEC+ countries introduce elements of uncertainty into these forecasts. This introduction provides context for the real estate report on the UAE’s economy.

In July 2023, the CBUAE increased its overnight deposit facility base rate by 25 basis points, moving it to 5.40% from the previous 5.15%. This decision followed the Federal Reserve’s earlier action to hike interest rates by 0.25%. This adjustment aligns with the fact that the Emirati Dirham is pegged to the dollar.
